

Monday 2 November 2009

projects in review products events people who's doing what sustainability indesign tv parties news flash sign magazine and get DQ Free!! Offer Extended! 26 Oct Nettleton Tribe Architects take out Corian Design Award Edition home » articles » in review

search indesignlive.com

calendar

- 05 Nov Art Exhibition at Transforma
- 06 Nov Nielson Design Lecture - Prof Michael Sorkin
- 10 Nov IFI 2009 World Interior Design Congress - Dubai
- 20 Nov [re]vision 09
- 20 Nov 100% Design Singapore

view more

advertisement

Nov 2 2009

Bruce Munro CD Sea

Bruce Munro calls for one million CDs to create his latest installation in the UK.

We've previously covered lighting artist Bruce Munro's installations on indesignlive.com, but we thought his latest was worth a mention.

UK-based Munro spent eight years in Australia, travelling the country and developing an appreciation for its natural beauty and fascinating light/landscape interactions. It was during his time here that he conceived his latest concept.

With 'CD Sea' Munro aims to collect one million discarded CDs to create a massive landscape installation, following on from the success of Field of Light.

live poll

Who should select designs for public architecture?

- Independent panels
- Government
- The public
- A combination of the above Skip to results

this month's supporters

Blok Furniture: Concrete Innovation

Blok Furniture recently teamed up with Cover and

The idea came on one Sunday afternoon at Nielsen Park, a Sydney harbour beach. "The light was still strong, like a blanket of shimmering silver light. I had this childish notion that by putting my hand in the sea I was somehow connected to my home in Salcombe, where my father lived.

"I came away from the beach in a very positive frame of mind, at one with the world," he says.

The first of a series of self-funded installations using discarded materials, 'CD Sea will be installed at Long Knoll Field in Wiltshire, covering 10 acres. Conceived as an inland sea, the million CDs will create a carpet of reflected light in the day and at night will capture the 'silvery light of the moon'.

Although Munro has collected a large number of CDs from a recycling plant, he's calling out for people to send in their discarded CDs to be used in this massive installation.

"If it inspires some smiling faces then the emotional force has been successfully passed on," he says.

If you'd like to donate your CDs you can contact Munro at info@brucemunro.co.uk.

Bruce Munro
brucemunro.co.uk

Send to a Friend

ShareThis

leave a comment

Name

Comment

If you'd like us to contact you, please provide your email below

Submit Comment

Biok Furniture recently teamed up with Geyer and Alternative Surfaces to create a custom result that makes you look twice. ...

Sensory Rewards

Sensory Rewards KLANG Audiovisual offers far more than traditional sales and service. With a focus on superior quality products which are truly e...

Novascreen from Hunter Douglas Commercial

Hunter Douglas Commercial showcases market-leading Novascreen Sunscreen Fabric...

WB Stool from Zenith

Introducing the WB Stool by designer David Walley....

Wide Workstation Spectrum

Office Spectrum specialise in extending the life of your office furniture....

advertisement

